

Washington State Homeschool Progress Review

A fill-in portfolio review is an approved assessment option in Washington State for homeschool students who do not take a standardized achievement test.

While Washington State identifies 11 required subject areas, families are not required to cover all 11 every academic year. When completing the form, you may reference your curriculum's scope and sequence, table of contents, books, chapters, or other materials used to describe instruction, as applicable.

Core Subjects Summary

Core subjects may be taught in an integrated manner and documented accordingly. Please provide a brief overview of instruction and progress for each area.

Reading

(Instruction in comprehension, literature, and related reading skills. Please share the main resources used and a brief overview of the concepts covered and skills your child developed this academic year.)

Writing & Language Arts

(Composition, handwriting, grammar, spelling, communication, and related language skills. Please share the main resources used and a brief overview of the concepts covered and skills your child developed this academic year.)

Math

(Concepts covered, skills practiced, and general progress. Please share the main resources used and a brief overview of the concepts covered and skills your child developed this academic year.)

Extra-Curricular Activities (Optional)

Please list any extra-curricular activities (sports, paid classes, co-ops, field trips, clubs, lessons, or community activities) your child participated in during the academic year. Activities listed here may reflect learning in other subject areas.

Other Subjects (Optional)

Washington State does not require instruction in all subject areas every academic year. Complete this section only if additional subjects were a meaningful part of your student's instructional program this year. Subjects may be integrated with core instruction or addressed informally.

(Examples may include science, social studies, history, health, occupational education, art, or music.)

Learning Context (Optional)

If applicable and if you feel comfortable sharing, please describe any learning differences, disabilities, or supportive services (such as PT, OT, or speech) that shaped your child's instructional approach, pacing, or learning goals this year.

Parent Confirmation

I confirm that the information provided above accurately reflects my student's instructional program and educational progress for the academic year listed.

Portfolio Evidence

You are welcome to attach samples of your student's portfolio work at the end of this document or attach/upload samples to my email at jb4homelearning@gmail.com. This may include worksheets, artwork, projects, books read or studied, a list of field trip experiences, and any other information regarding experiences and materials used to enhance the learning experience over the year. Ideally, a comprehensive portfolio usually includes a reading log, math samples, writing samples and a record of activities that cover main academic requirements that may include science, social studies, history, etc.

Please keep in mind that you do not need to submit work samples for each subject.
